Video - Cisco Vision - Expanding the Classroom (2 min)

Do you remember sitting in a classroom, like this? Like this. Like this. Do you remember when it was all about classrooms? Do you remember when you couldn't watch a lecture at Peking University on your iPod? When you couldn't download problem sets on your cellphone? And troubleshoot them in a chatroom with grad students in three countries? Worlds changed. You don't have to be in school anymore to take a class. You don't have to be in a classroom to have a teacher. You don't have to be under 30 to feel you've got a whole lot left to learn. Your job, your world might demand that you constantly keep learning. Learning might be something you keep doing all your life. Because school might be something that always goes with you. Right there, anytime, anywhere. That dynamic network flux of knowledge and teaching that's happening all around you. In the cloud. On the web. On your phone. So you could say, it's not about the classroom anymore. Or you could turn all that around and say, the classroom just got a whole lot bigger.
